Statement of Purpose

This sabbatical leave application is for Fall. I propose to use this time to complete two Creative Writing courses, ENGL V11 (t .4 (a)8.4 (b)-0.6 TJ EMC I V11A and V11B), Introduction to Fiction (ENGL V16), and Introduction to Creative Nonfiction (ENGL V14). These courses are regularly our most

As with most of the subjects within the Humanities, English is adjusting to meet the needs of our students. Gone are the days when we can count on students enrolling in our classes only because they see an inherent value in writing well to succeed academically and to be more professional later in life. In the past century, that has been enough, but our relevance is no longer a given for all of our students. Creative Writing is one of the avenues that the contemporary student has gravitated towards in our discipline. Offering more sections of our already popular class is a step toward meeting our students where they are so we can take them where they want to go.

Furthermore, curricula are stronger when varied opinions and viewpoints help form them. By having one more informed full time faculty member working with our current full time Creative Writing faculty, we have the potential of reaching more students from differing backgrounds than we currently do.

Personally, this sabbatical is necessary for me for my own development. I have already paid for three UCLA Extension writing courses and I will pay for these two myself out of pocket. The reason is that for as early as I could remember, I've wanted to write a novel length work of fiction. For a variety of reasons too long and boring to state here, I've not accomplished that feat. I have finally gotten some wind in my sails and I see the possibility of achieving that goal within my grasp. This sabbatical will push me over the finish line.

Finally, I have taught English at the college level for seventeen years, ten here at VC. Most likely, I have about seventeen more to go before I retire. I love my job here at VC more than I can say. I realize how lucky I am to work here. But since the end of Covid, I have sensed the fire burning inside smoldering a bit. I believe this time off to help me remember what it is I love English for, will help me. Also, by modeling the life of the writer for my students more convincingly, will allow me to be a more effective teacher. Quite frankly, without having a book length manuscript in my back pocket, even if it isn't published, makes me feel a bit like a fraud if I am to teach students Creative Writing.

Sabbatical Project Components

Professional development: I will pursue coursework through UCLA Extension in their Creative Writing Certificate program. These two ten week courses will be worth 3 credits each. Those coupled with three courses I have already taken will put me 2 courses away from completing their Creative Writing Certificate. More importantly, the content of the courses will provide me with material I can use when I return to VC and teach the Creative Writing classes. Currently we have two Creative Writing instructors. One has a specialty in Poetry and the other Creative Non-Fiction. I will be able to contribute expertise positive effect on the enthusiasm that I bring to the classroom, which has a direct impact on the effectiveness of my curriculum.

To the District

The district will benefit greatly by having a robust Credit Certificate in Creative Writing. VC will be leading the way in the district in this regard.
